money well wasted

i really couldn't get into this game

cool concept, but the steep learning curve i thought i could manage ruined it for me, tried refunding it but steam is \u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665ing stupid. Thanks for releasing this soundtrack. Music from this game reminds me of childhood memories. Now i can listen to it everywhere.. I got this game wanting to see how it compared to Overcooked. I tried playing with a pro controller, and it took too long to position the character to access the different items in the game. I resorted to a mouse and keyboard although the game suggested just the keyboard (which would be the same issue as the pro controller.) While I enjoyed the tutorial and the first day, I found that it progressed difficulty way too quickly. I think I'll stick to Overcooked.. Liked this game a lot! Not too easy, not too difficult, lovely art style. Took me about 9 hours to complete with all achievements..

- * Pictures are gorgeous
- * Excellent snapping
- * Lack of rotating pieces makes it more relaxing
- * Ability to separate the edge and inner pieces (even if it feels like cheating)
- * The movement allows you to pretty easily guess where the pieces go
- * There's a yawning tiger <3 (even though it made me yawn uncontrollably)

- * The music is VERY annoying
- * Sometimes pieces fit when it looks like they shouldn't (or don't when it looks like they should)
- * The cursor can be EXTREMELY laggy - I sometimes had to click five or six times to pick up a piece
- * Leaving pieces on the board is a bad idea as you can't tell what's locked and what's loose

Very WYSIWYG - a neat twist on jigsaw games.

Would recommend picking up on sale - bit pricey at normal cost.. It just a typical horror video game with a little teddy bear and a little girl. The Teddy is lost and girl(us) trying to find him. In the basement I guess. with ugly monsters it is funny and frightening I totally recommend you to play it.. Yeah, a nice game. You can report a bug inside game, just clicking ESC and go to gear and click the button "submit a bug report".

It is a very repetitive game, but it is that game that you always have for half an hour to play.

Sometimes you play 1 hour or 2 and you do not realize =)
